His righteousness is necessary for our

The Hebrew word da-ath is almost always translated "knowledge." It can also be translated "perception" or "awareness." The Greek gnosis is also almost always translated "knowledge" although in one case it was translated "science" by the King James. My definition of knowledge is "awareness of facts."

For further thought:

- [L] The word "know" or "knows" appears 32 times in the First Epistle of John, or about once every third verse. None of these are in the first chapter and yet the first three verses of 1 John 1 are entirely about knowledge, at least in my opinion. Read 1 John 1:1-3. Do you agree? Why or why not?
- [m] Can you think of a time when knowledge of God and/or the Bible was helpful to you in some way? What were the circumstances? How did it turn out?
- [n] The word "knowledge" appears 5 times in 2 Peter 1:2-8. Does it mean the same thing in all cases? So what?
- [o] What is your plan for increasing your knowledge?
- [p] The word "know" or some form of it appears eleven times in 1 Corinthians 8:1-13. What can we learn about the virtue of knowledge from this passage?
- [q] The term "knowledge" appears in Isaiah 11:1-10. What does it mean in that context?
- [r] The word "knowledge" appears over 150 times in the Bible. Use a concordance to find some of these appearances to read and discuss. "Know" appears another 800 or so times, just in case you run out. ☺
